The website suggests that you also try out (alongside the course) the TV series, a book and audio cassettes and also if you are a tutor to look at the tutor notes with added activities. To be honest, once you've done the on-line course you don't have to buy the BBC Talk language pack, unless you want to do the above away.

For this reason it's also an area which is often neglected, but this aspect of the language can cause problems for learners in both their speaking and perhaps more importantly listening. . Not using stress-time can also make students sound laboured when they speak and can cause irritation on the part of the listener.
